State Bank Conversion FAQ Sheet

Why did we change our name?

After careful consideration and deliberation, The First National Bank of Barry's Board of Directors elected to convert from a national bank to a state bank. It is our belief there are competitive advantages to be gained from this conversion that will better allow our bank to serve you and our communities. The bank has not been sold and it is the intention of the Board to remain independent. The benefits of this conversion will help us accomplish that goal.

The one major change that you, our valued customers, will see is a change to our bank name and logo. By no longer being a nationally chartered bank, that also means that we can no longer display national in our bank name. The new name is a reference to the Illinois, Mississippi, and Missouri Rivers. With over 100 years of history working with customers between and around these great rivers the bank wanted to represent this area in the new name.

Again, rest assured we were not sold, did not merge and your account information did not change. We are still the same locally owned, community bank you have come to know and trust.

How does this affect me, the customer?

The simple answer is it really doesn't! We've updated our branding, but your accounts will go unchanged. Account numbers, checks, debit cards, account features and online/mobile banking services will all continue as they were prior to December 28, 2018 (the date of the name change).

Are my account numbers changing?

No, all account and loan numbers are the same as they were prior to December 28 and feature the same great benefits you experienced previously. The bank's routing number is also the same. This means there is no need to update any Direct Deposit or Automatic ACH transactions you may have.

Do I need to order new checks?

No, you can continue to use any checks that bear The First National Bank of Barry logo and/or name that you currently have until your supply is gone. This ability is made possible because there are no account or routing number changes taking place.

Just note that as you reorder checks after December 28, these checks will have the new name and logo on them.
